Tucson's first LGBTQ Community Center, the not for profit and all volunteer Gay Community Services Center (G.C.S.) of Tucson began in early 1976 with local businessman Norman F. Obermaier who would become the Director later, Doc Hayes, John Richtars the owner of Lucky Pierre's Bar located at 2222 N. Stone Avenue, Xavier Almada, along with many others.

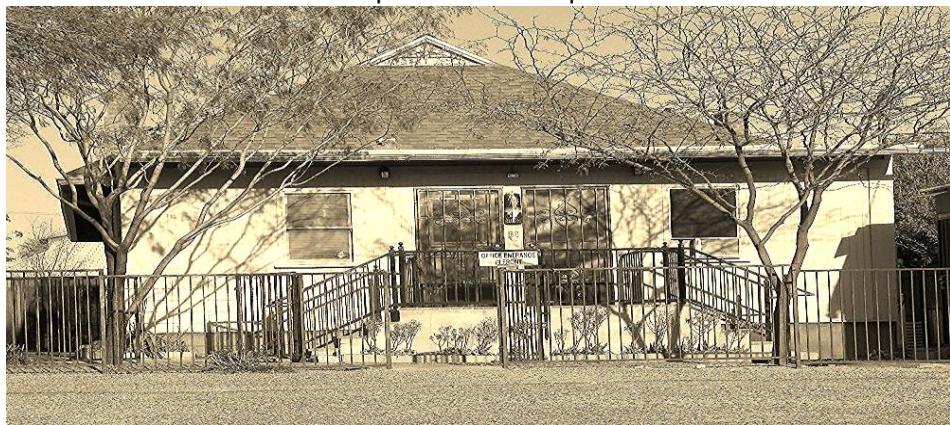

The Tucson Gay Community Services Center offered a live Telephone Answerline for Gays & Lesbians, hosted the Tucson Gay Youth Group, provided Peer Counseling, Gay Rights Activism, Guest Speakers, a Gay Housing Referral Service, a Venereal Disease (V.D.) Prevention Program held at the Free Clinic which was located at the corner of Franklin and Granada Streets in downtown Tucson, was a member of the Tucson Food Bank and on its Advisory Board, and was a cooperating Community Service Agency of the United Way, American Civil Liberties Union (A.L.C.U.), Tucson Rape Crisis Center, Legal Aid Society, and Tucson Suicide Prevention Center.

For the Venereal Disease program, Gay Community Services Center members were specially trained to draw blood allowing Gay clients to be tested by Gay G.C.S. members. In its early days the group met down in the basement at the Grace Episcopal Church located at 2331 E. Adams Street, at the Truth Chapel at 920 N. 1st Avenue, rented office space at 624 E. Toole Avenue #6 for a time, and utilized numerous other venues before its Tuesday December 21, 1976 renting of the property and later opening of the center located near the downtown 4th Avenue area at 627 N. 7th. The 7th Street property had major electrical wiring problems the landlord would not repair requiring the group to at first work in the dark, with flashlights, and kerosene lamps during its open hours of 9:00AM to Midnight for seven (7) days a week until completion of the repairs.

The Gay Community Services Center also regularly combined efforts with the Tucson Metropolitan Community Church and often at times all the local Gay Bars in organizing food drives for items to be given to the Tucson Food Bank which at that time was distributed only to local agencies such as the Tucson Gay Community Services Center for re-distribution to their own clients.
